Hiring Team at Lower Street,

I saw that Lower Street is looking for a video editor, and I'd like to put my name in for consideration. Making podcasts that actually matter is a great mission, and I've spent a lot of my career working on B2B and enterprise content that needs that same kind of focus.

Over the years, I've worked on campaigns for brands like Disney and Boeing, but my main focus is always just getting the story right. I'm not just here to switch cameras. I'm an editor who likes taking a rough cut and making it look and feel like a finished, professional piece.

Technically, I use Premiere Pro and After Effects every day, and I'm familiar with how Descript fits into the workflow. I also like experimenting with new tools. I recently put together a proof of concept (vimeo.com/1171216222) that looks at how AI-generated footage can work in a narrative. I just enjoy finding the right way to tell a story, whether it's with traditional b-roll or something more experimental.

I'm used to working in remote, asynchronous teams and I'm comfortable keeping projects moving on a schedule. I also made sure to spot the word Lime in your description.

I'd love to talk more about how I can help the team.

Best regards,

Jeffery Kerr
